DISABLED PRISONERS. Prisoners with disabilities or handicaps are protected both by the Constitution and by federal statutes. Under the Constitution, prison officials must meet the medical needs of disabled prisoners and furnish the assistance that they require in order to live a minimally decent life in prison. As one court put it, "the prison authorities must take the prisoner as they find him and provide facilities compatible with his physical condition that meet civilized standards of decency."

RUIZ V. ESTELLE 503 F. SUPP /265

Disabled prisoners have greater rights under the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA).

42 U.S.C. & 12101 et seq.

ADA applies to any public entity. A "public entity" is defined in the ADA as including "any State or local government" or "any department, agency, special purpose district, or other instrumentality of a State or States or local government. This definition clearly includes correction departments and other agencies that operate prisons and jails.

COUGHLIN 145 F.R.D. 339

To take advantage of the ADA, you must be a "qualified individual with a disability." "Disability" under the ADA means:

- (A) a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of the major life activities of [an] individual;
- (B) a record of such impairment; or
- (c) being regarded as having such an impairment.

A "qualified individual with a disability" is one who with or without reasonable modification to rules, policies, or practices, the remyal of architectural, communication, or transportation barriers, or the provision of auxiliary aids and services, meets the essential eligibility requirements for the receipt of services or the participation in programs or activities...

The rights of the ADA provides to prisoners are broader than those guaranteed by the Constitution in several respects.

First, the statute requires defendants to change the way they operate, to provide additional services, and to make physical renovations if necessary to avoid excluding disabled persons from programs and services. The Rehabilitation Act standard, which will almost certainly be applied under the ADA, calls for a reasonable accommodations to permit handicapped persons to participate in prison programs.

Accommodations are only deemed unreasonable if they impose "undue financial and administrative burdens" or require "a fundamental alteration in the nature of [the] program." This is a much more favorable standard than the "reasonable relationship" test of Turner v. Safley, under which prison officials are entitled to avoid "ripple effects?" on fellow immates or on prison staff," and prisoners must propose alternatives with "de minimis cost" in order to win.

Second, prisons may not engage in blanket exclusions of whole classes of prisoners from certain activities. They must make individualized judgments as to what individuals are "qualified."

Third, prisons may not give in to the perceptions or fears of inmates and staff. As noted above, the ADA specifically protects those who are "regarded" by others as having a disability, as well as those who actually have one.

The ADA requires the federal government to promulgate regulations implementing the statute. These regulations spell out in more detail what public entities must do to comply with the statute. These obligations include conducting self-evaluations of their compliance and adopting a procedure for handling complaints.

You are not required to exhaust administrative remedies before suing under the "public entity" provisions of Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act. The relief available includes equitable relief (an injunction) and back pay; we believe that damages are available also.

LETTER OF INFORMATION ON PROPOSAL

According to (42 usc & 12101 et seq) "Americans with Disabilities Act" (4 pages info attached) I am entitled to assistance, for my problem writing due to Parkinson's Disease. It impairs my ability to communicate with my attorney, family, court, and C.C.J-CRW, mail room, C/O's, griévances, clothing, administration, anything, etc-...

- I am entitled to a reasonable solution. I propose the following:
- 1) I be allowed to use typewriter in Law Library at least 3 times a week, for 2 to 3 hours each time; OR
- 2) A typewriter be brought up to 9-3H (or store room on 3H) for my use 6 to 9 hours per week;

  OR
- 3) I am provided with a laptop word processor, and able to download once a week, and print; OR
- 4) I be allowed to receive direct from a vendor a Canon portable typewriter AC/DC, very small approximately 10½" x 12" x 1½". This kind of typewriter used to be sold on commissary on IDOC.

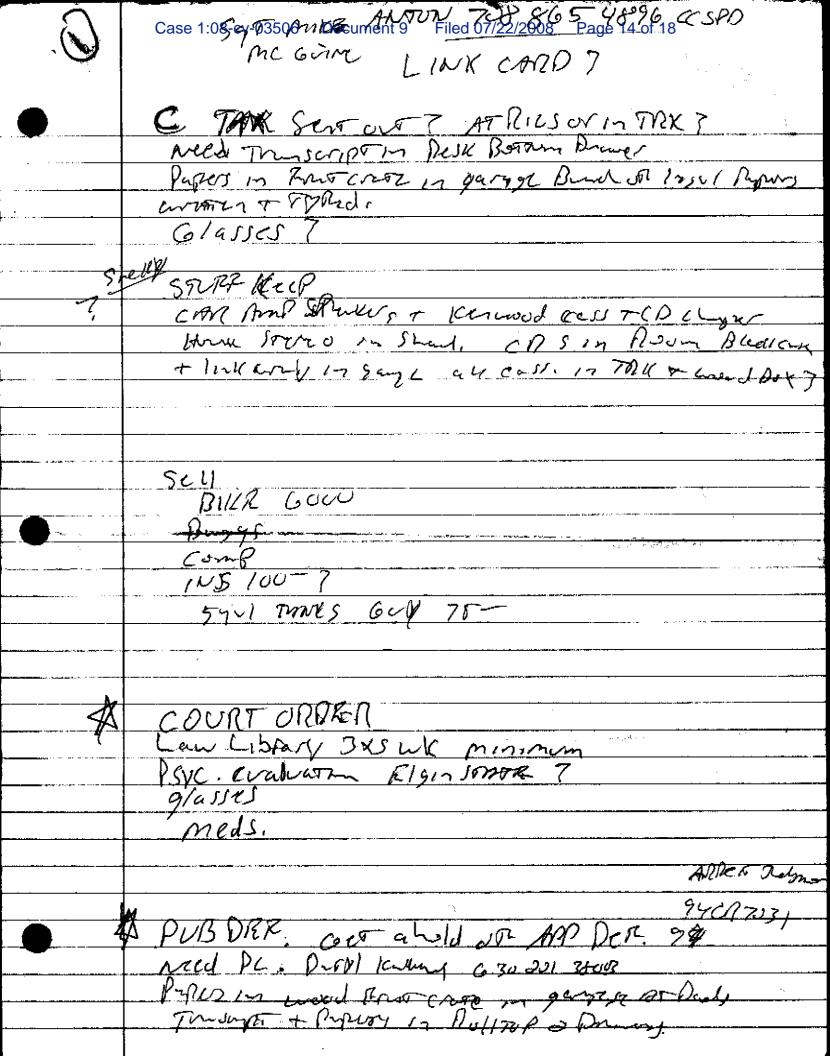

Regarding proposal #4 on previous page, I require the following:

- a) A permit allowing me to possess and use and retain said Canon typewriter, so it will not be confiscated by staff in a shake down and/or as contraband.
- b) Two sets of batteries for said typewriter.—
  extra set to be held as deemed appropos (?)
- c) Two extra ribbon cartridges for typewriter.

Thenk you har your consideration 3-1308
